Oh that's some option that will only work for some people used to think it was impossible

People used to think it was impossible

Are we there yet?

But look at all the people here today!
13% of people in 46 states use self-direction.

A very small piece of the pie.

People who self-direct are likely to live at home or independently.

Better relationships — less likely to be involved in their congregations.

Some states still offer it, others don't.

Separate keeping support from money

Traditional case management and self-direction don't work together too well.

THE PEOPLE WHO MAKE DECISIONS ABOUT WHERE/WHOW IS SPENT KNOW... IT'S NOT JUST COST-EFFECTIVE PRODUCES BETTER OUTCOMES.

It still seems that only a small proportion of people have the chance to self-direct.

INKY
I'm not the boss.

The boss was the guy one this.

I met people from the place.

I'm used to microwaving all over.

My own staff, hiring, choosing...

But other way around.
